Mental Health and wellbeing - Screentime

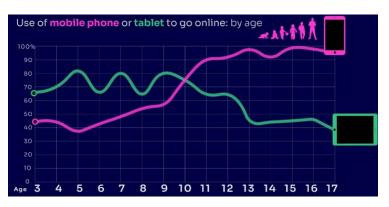

Extended screen time has become increasingly normal for young children and teenagers. Research suggests a 52% increase in children's screen time between 2020 and 2022, and that nearly 25% of children and young people use their smartphones in a way that is consistent with a behavioural addiction. Screen use has been found to start as early as six months of age. One in five children aged between three and four years old have their own mobile phone, increasing to one in four children by age eight and to almost all children by age twelve. The amount of time those aged 5–15 years old spent online rose from an average of 9 hours per week in 2009, to 15 hours per week in 2018.

LONDON, Aug 2 (Reuters) - British authorities have shut down an online platform which allowed criminals to make fraudulent phone calls to steal money from hundreds of thousands of people globally, the National Crime Agency (NCA) said.

The platform, named 'Russian Coms' but with no known link to the Russian state, was a crime-as-a-service operation that allowed criminals to impersonate legitimate callers such as banks or credit card firms in order to defraud victims over the phone, NCA officials said at a media briefing.

The red pill is linked to incel, or "involuntarily celibate", culture, where misogynistic and extremist views are prevalent. The meaning originates from The Matrix films, but has been adopted by the manosphere to represent those who see the "real truth" in the world.

The blue pill is used in incel culture to represent the opposite of the red pill - those who are blind to the real truth and adhere to more mainstream views about gender dynamics.

A symbol used in relation to incel culture. It represents the idea promoted by those in the manosphere that 80% of women are attracted to 20% of men.

Misogyny and the use of emoji's

A symbol tied to incel culture. It is the kidney bean emoji, but is thought to represent coffee beans, which link back to a series of memes mocking women.

Frog Emoji – Associated with alt-right and extremist meme culture, often linked to Pepe the Frog, which has been co-opted by some toxic online groups. The frog emoji can mean "You're ugly". It is used in bullying or harassment contexts.

Skull – While often just slang for "that's funny" or "I'm dead (from laughing)," in certain groups, it can signal darker themes like nihilism or self-harm. Skull, alien and devil emojis may represent the drug ecstasy.

Eagle - A symbol of extreme nationalism, sometimes used in far-right online spaces.

Tornado - Represents chaos or feeling overwhelmed, sometimes used to indicate mental distress.

Black Hole - Used to express depression, hopelessness, or being sucked into negative online spaces.

The plug can be used to mean drug dealer, also known as a person's "plug".

The horse emojis can be used to represent the drug ketamine.

The balloon emoji may be used to represent the drug nitrous oxide.

The snowflake, nose and petrol pump are all used to represent the drug cocaine.

Camera emojis can represent a request for nude/explicit images or videos.

Peach, aubergine and cherries can all be used to represent body parts in a sexual context.

The sweat emoji may also be used in a sexual context.

A face with no mouth can convey the message "Do not tell anybody". It may be used in a bullying context or when sharing inappropriate, illegal or sensitive information.

- Heart emojis can mean different things depending on the colour used. The red heart usually means love.
- The purple heart can be used to convey attraction or sexual desire.
- The yellow heart may mean "I'm interested, are you interested?"
- The pink heart can mean "I'm interested but not in sex."
- An orange heart is more likely to be platonic, and means "You're going to be fine."

What can we do about it?

What is important to note is the meaning behind emoji's can be regional and regularly change and be out of date

Recognise the influence of the online culture

Teach skills to manage stress and emotions

Engage with the emotional development of children Take accountability for choices made

Address the masculinity crisis Talk about emotions, model vulnerability

Highlight the importance of parental involvement Computer in his room, no idea what they are oing

Create a safe space for conversations Monitor behavioural shifts, sleep, eating habits, mood, friend groups

Consider the complexities of mental health Promote critical thinking
